Continuing Education Information

PACIFIC COAST UNIVERSITY
FOR WORKPLACE HEALTH SCIENCES

The provision of Continuing Education courses in Disability Management and Return to Work will be administered by the Pacific Coast University for Workplace Health Sciences (PCU-WHS).

There are various options of Continuing Education courses that are available to BC Residents – please review the listing below. All courses are available online and are provided in an asynchronous delivery over a one-week time frame.

One needs to have enrolled by Wednesday of the week prior to course commencement. On Thursday of that same week, each participant receives an email with information regarding access to the online site where all course materials are provided including course manual, additional readings, and possibly additional materials such as copies of forms, reports or other documents. The course commences on the following Monday and the instructor will provide details of what will take place over the week that the course is available online. Participants are expected to have reviewed all course materials in advance of course commencement and participate in the online discussion board area during the week. There is one additional week provided in which participants are expected to complete and submit an assignment, usually a 2-3 page written assignment. Total amount of hours to complete all of the above is approximately 12 hours.

Please identify which Continuing Education courses you are interested in taking.

This Grant for Continuing Education opportunities is provided by the Province of British Columbia to eligible BC Residents.

The goal is to encourage the development and implementation of workplace-based Return to Work / Disability Management programs so employers can assist workers who acquire a mental or physical health impairment to maintain attachment to their workplace. As over 80% of impairments occur during a person's working life, and we now know that spending a year on disability support, means that less than 1% of those individuals will ever work again, the goal once an employee leaves the workplace is to ensure early intervention. It has been demonstrated that workplace efforts in early intervention and return to work play a key role in successful socio-economic outcomes for the injured/disabled worker.

Eligibility qualifications for enrollment in Continuing Education programs is the completion of secondary school, a proficiency in grammar with evidence of adequate reading and writing skills, and basic computer skills.

By signing and submitting this application, the applicant declares that they are a BC resident and that all information provided in this application is true and complete.
